COAL STRIKE STARTS AT MIDNIGHT

Both Factions Balk at Pinchot's Plan; Door to Peace Still Open

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 31.—Federal agents and State troopers have visited scores of saloons and hotels throughout the anthracite area, serving notice to owners to tear out their bars and other fixtures within the next four days.

Written orders served on the hotelmen bore the signatures of United States Attorney General Daugherty, Attorney General Woodruff of Pennsylvania, Deputy Attorney General English and the agent carrying out the orders.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 31. (I. N.S.)—At midnight tonight a strike in the coal fields will be on.

Miners and operators meeting today with Governor Pinchot will inform the Pennsylvania executive that as yet certain points of his proposal basis for settlement of the anthracite controversy are unacceptable and need clarification.

While this reply will of necessity mean a walkout as scheduled, the

REED FISH CONVICTS VANISH

Mystery of Disappearance on Way From Island Arouses Ire of Official Head

Fish men, fish men, who's got the fish men?

It's a whale of a mystery. Institutions Commissioner Johnson has smelt a rat, and doesn't propose to be a sucker for anybody.

If he finds out the name of the shrimp who violated his orders he'll can the lobster.

The facts, friends, are these:

ORDERED RELEASED.

Five of the Fish Trust prisoners at Long Island were ordered released today. They are Ephraim N. Cook, Albert E. Watts, Herbert F. Phillips, William E. Curran and Winfield S. Kendrick.

In consideration of good behavior it was found they were entitled to their freedom from Long Island on Thursday, at midnight.

Commissioner Johnson ordered they be taken to Eastern avenue wharf on the first boat which left today. This would get them to the wharf at 7:45 a. m.

Reporters and photographers were

100 HURT AS MOB ATTACKS KLANSMEN

Perth Amboy, N. J., Aug. 31—Battling between Ku Klux Klansmen and mobs was resumed on the streets of Perth Amboy today as members of the order tried to escape from the Odd Fellows' hall where they had sought refuge during an attack on a clan meeting last night in which upward of 100 persons are reported to have been injured.

A hundred men, armed with clubs and stones, made an attack as thirty Klansmen, who had remained hidden in the hall, dashed from the building.

The Klansmen were severely beat

MUSSOLINI WILL DEFY MEDIATION

Resents Plan of League to Intervene in Ultimatum to Greece

Rome, Aug. 31 (I.N.S.)—Italy is reinforcing her troops in Cirenaica, Africa. French detachments were landed at Marsa Brega today without incident.

London, Aug. 31.—Premier Mussolini, of Italy, will resist intervention by the League of Nations in the Italian-Greek dispute over the assassination of Italians, according to a Central News dispatch from Rome.

The Italian minister at Paris today received instructions to prepare a list of names and addresses of Italian reservists living in France.

Newspapers learn from Brindisi, a southern Italy seaport, that the Greek steamer Utromidos, which was scheduled to leave for a Greek port, has been stopped in the harbor. The press dispatches add that the Italian steamship Adria, which had cleared for the Levant, was ordered later to go direct to Constantinople without touching at Greek ports.

The council of the League of Nations which was scheduled to meet at Geneva today, was expected to make representations to both Italy and Greece to preserve peace on the Mediterranean.

The powers were reported exerting

GLOUCESTER RACERS AGAIN TO RACE FOR LIPTON CUP

Gloucester, Aug. 31.—When the three boats reached the starting line they were notified the race would start at 10:45. The breeze had increased slightly. Captain Marty Welch of the Shamrock said whatever the outcome of today's attempt it would be his last race, as he would start for the fishing grounds tomorrow.

Gloucester, Aug. 31.—For the third time this week, three picked schooners of the American fishing fleet approached the starting line today to decide possession of the sir

2 OFFICERS AND NEGRO DIE IN RIOT

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 31.—Two detectives and one negro were shot to death and three police officers were probably fatally wounded today when three automobile loads of policemen were answering a riot call to Rosedale, a negro section of this city, where the coke ovens of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation are located.

All available Johnstown police were rushed to the scene of the ambush and a call for aid was sent to State police.

The rioting, which grew out of a quarrel among the negroes, was quelled and fifteen negroes were arrested. The assailants of the of

GREB PICKED TO CLEAN UP WILSON

By JACK CONWAY

New York, Aug. 31.—Johnny Wilson, world's middleweight champion, and Harry Greb, challenger, are awaiting for the sound of the bell which will send them into action in their fifteen-round decision bout at the Polo Grounds tonight.

Greb is Our Selections to Win

The Pittsburgh fighter appears to be in the best of physical condition and should be able to outpoint the champion. As Wilson has not engaged in an important bout in almost two years, there is also a possibility that Greb may count with a knockout.

Greb announced today that he

REAL HERO SAVES LIFE WHEN REEL HERO BLUNDERS

New York Aug. 31.—A twentieth century cop today rescued a movie "double" from drowning and provided camera-men with a thriller not in the script of the Romeo-Juliet romance they were filming.

The picture was being taken in an open-air studio on East 126th street, with medieval castle, mossy moat, and a drawbridge as the immediate locale. The hero battles the villain, Ian McClaren. In the struggle with the hero he got tangled up in the flowing sleeves of his costume and when he struck the water in the moat he was powerless.

Patrolman David Gamble dashed into the picture and, divesting himself of gun and club, dove to the rescue of the unconscious double.

MOTHER OF 5 VANISHES; WAS GOING TO WEDDING

The five children of Mrs. Josephine Juffante, ranging in age from two to eighteen years, were inconsolable today, as a result of her disappearance from their home at No. 1856 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester.

Mrs. Juffante left home yesterday morning, for her place of employment, in her pocket an amount of money with which to purchase a new dress to wear to a wedding next Sunday.

Last night her employer, whose place of business is No. 684 Washington street, telephoned the woman's husband, Vincent Juffante, asking why she had not been at work.

Juffante notified the police. The children the two youngest being Vincent, three years and Teresa, two years, are being cared for by neighbors.

Mrs. Juffante is forty-one years old, five feet four inches tall, of dark complexion, wearing a long black dress, black hat, no coat, black shoes and stockings, and a gold watch on a black ribbon around her neck.

GAS BOMBS ARE HURLED IN KU KLUX KLAN RIOT IN NEW JERSEY

FIREMEN TURN STREAMS OF WATER ON BIG CROWD BATTLING AT PERTH AMBOY

en before they were able to escape their pursuers. Several were reported seriously injured.

The city resembled a community under martial law with the entire police force a strong detachment of State constabulary and 150 firemen on duty.

Many of the injured are in a serious condition.

An angry mob of 5,000 citizens besieged 150 klansmen in the hall throughout the entire night defying police to drive them away.

Every doctor in the city has treated one or more persons on both sides for injuries. Several others have been taken to the hospitals.

The battling started shortly before midnight, when a crowd estimated at more than 5,000 men broke up a widely-advertised klan meeting in the Odd Fellows' Hall.

ROBED KLUXERS BEATEN.

The entire police force of seventy-five, with drawn guns and clubs, and re-enforced by the entire fire department, made a desperate effort to protect the 500 Klansmen, whose meeting had been surrounded by the clamoring mob.

Tear bombs and well-directed streams from fire hose dispersed the surging thousands after a first attack, but, returning with renewed fury, they swept the force aside, hacked the hoses to pieces and charged into the meeting hall.

Klansmen withstood the onslaught until greatly outnumbered, when many of them fought their way to doors, windows and fire escapes, only to be engulfed in the crowds below.

Those who had not had the foresight to remove their klan regalia were easily distinguishable and received rough treatment before they escaped into the woods bordering the city.

PATROL WAGON MOBBED.

Police Chief Tonneson had summoned a detachment of State troopers, whose arrival was greeted by renewed activities of the muttering mob. Aided by the State troopers, the police began the removal of the imprisoned klansmen. Several of them were loaded into three automobiles, which the crowd immediately overturned, administering severe beatings to the occupants.

A patrol wagon load of rescued received similar treatment. The crowd intercepted a number of escaping Klansmen who were being led to safety over adjoining roofs. They were also beaten.

When the last of the klansmen had fled they left behind them the threat that they would return for revenge with a force of 10,000. This called for the answer that they would be met with 20,000.

In the general confusion it was impossible to ascertain the night's casualties. Although the police used their guns they only discharged them into the air and no one was killed.

When the riot started the mob numbered 5,000. The leaders demanded that the police let them enter the hall, but their demands were refused.

KNOCK DOWN LEADERS.

Disregarding police orders, the crowd pushed toward the hall. Some policemen fired into the air. Others knocked down the mob leaders.

Men in the crowd dragged off their fallen comrades and returned.

Soon rocks began to fly. Every window in the hall and in the stores on the ground floor was broken.

Chief Tonneson ordered his men to throw the tear gas bombs. Thirteen were thrown. The crowd ran, but returned when the supply of ammunition was exhausted.

Stones were again thrown and some of the crowd got into the hall.

FIREMEN USE HOSE.

Chief Tonneson then issued a riot call and summoned the fire department of one hundred and fifty men. The clanging apparatus dashed into and through the immense crowd, which surged backward temporarily, but soon came back to the fight.

The firemen connected their hose to all available hydrants and turned the streams upon the crowd.

Some ran, others darted forward and cut the hose. The crowd stoned the firemen.

Chief Tonneson ordered the Klansmen to leave the building. Some did so, running for fire escapes and doors. They were met by the crowd and scores of flat fights took place. One man, who wore the badge of a New York deputy sheriff, was arrested for carrying a pistol. He said he was James Jones of Manhattan.

Corporal Michael Kelly, of the State police, rode his motor-cycle down Smith street, in front of the building, ordering the crowd to disperse. Several husky men picked him off the motor-cycle and stood him on the sidewalk.

Deputies Are Ejected by 2,000 Michigan Klansmen

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 31.—Regardless of the new State law which prohibits wearing of masks in public, a crowd estimated at two thousand persons wearing robes gathered for a meeting in a field near Monnier and Snyder roads. A squad of deputy sheriffs, who attempted to prove through a cordon of robed and cowled men guarding entrances to the field, was turned aside.

A huge fiery cross lighted the assembly. One of the men at the entrance to the field informed the deputies that the meeting was being held on leased ground and not subject to the public masking law.

The deputies returned to Detroit without making any arrests.

Is this the Spark that Will Start New War?

Observers of world politics are in the latest developments in Italy Mars yawning in preparation of another debauch of war.

There are deadly parallels in the situation today and the condition of things in 1914, when the smouldering embers of world war broke out.

The Archduke Francis Ferdinand was assassinated at Serajavo, and the shot which killed him started the worst unheaval in the world's history.

Today the situation is infinitely worse than it was in 1914. Today there is imminent famine, industrial unrest, political revolution, financial instability. As a result of the deliberate murder of five Italian members of the Inter-Allied Commission, war between Greece and Italy may break out at any moment.

Both nations seem to have been searching an excuse. Here it is.

They have been at sword's points for some time over the Grecian-Italian boundary in Albania.

Germany is trembling on the brink of social revolution because of the Ruhr situation. France would welcome such a revolution. It would give her an excuse to march to Berlin "in the interests of law and order."

Russia watches and waits grimly.

Her experiment in bloody anarchy seems fated to spread. England could not see France in Berlin unmoved. Russia has been threatening Poland. Ireland is still a hotbed of strife.

How will Greece treat the drastic Italian ultimatum?

ITALY BLOCKS GREEK SHIPS

pressure upon Premier Mussolini of Italy to prevent the Italians from going to war with Greece.

An unconfirmed report originated from Italian sources today that the Italian battle fleet sailed from Taranto last night. Taranto is the Italian naval base nearest to Greece.

British foreign office officials declared this afternoon in the event of war between Italy and Greece, Great Britain would endeavor to restrict the zone of hostilities, preventing other powers from being dragged in.

The first battle squadron of the British navy has been ordered to assemble at Invergordon, but admiralty officials claim that this activity is without significance. British destroyers have been ordered to concentrate at an unnamed rendezvous.

ACTIVITY AT MALTA.

There is considerable activity at the British naval base of Malta in the Mediterranean.

British newspapers, in discussing war possibilities, point out that Italy outnumbers Greece as to army, navy and air forces three to one. But there is much conjecture as to the attitude of Jugo-Slavia and Turkey in the event of war.

Jugo-Slavia is angry over the failure to acquire Fiume and the Turks are disgruntled over the loss of African territory to Italy.

Most British newspapers believe that Mussolini acted too hastily and drastically in sending an ultimatum to Athens.

Greece Flatly Rejects Three Drastic Demands

Rome, Aug. 31 (AP).—The Italian government today had before it Greece's reply to Premier Mussolini's ultimatum embodying seven demands for reparation and indemnity for the massacre of the Italian officers serving on the Greco-Albanian boundary commission.

The reply declares that the Greek government considers as unjust the attribution to it by Italy of responsibility for the assassinations, and says it finds it impossible to accept the fourth, fifth and sixth demands in the ultimatum, considering them violations of the honor and sovereignty of the Greek State.

These demands were that honors in the form of a twenty-one gun salute be paid by a Greek naval squadron to the Italian flag; that the Greek authorities institute a thorough inquiry into the massacre on the scene of the slayings, assisted by the Italian military attache in Athens, and that all the guilty be executed.

The Greek reply promises a formal apology for the incident, but in a modified form from that laid down in the Italian ultimatum, and also agrees to the celebration of a religious function in memory of the victims.

It offers "just indemnity" to the families of the slain commissioners, and concludes with the hope that Italy will acknowledge Greece's conciliatory spirit and her desire to give satisfaction.

Athens Delays Appeal to League of Nations

Athens, Aug. 31 (A.P.). — It is stated in reliable quarters that the government will await Italy's reply to the Greek note in answer to the Italian ultimatum, before having recourse to the League of Nations, of which both nations are members.

If an appeal to the League is considered necessary, it will be based upon Articles 13 and 15 of the covenant, by virtue of which the League must necessarily intervene, even if asked to do so by only one of the parties concerned.

Child Offers Italy U. S. Condolences

Rome, Aug. 31.—Richard Washburn Child, the American Ambassador, has presented to the government the condolences of the United States, over the massacre of the Italian boundary mission. The British and Polish emissaries have also conveyed the sympathy of those nations.

THIRD TRIAL FOR LIPTON CUP

Thomas Lipton and J. W. Prentiss Cups, open to competition by bona fide fishing vessels of this class, the world over. On Monday fog caused postponement.

Yesterday lack of wind prevented the racers from finishing within the six-hour limit.

In light variable airs yesterday, the Henry Ford of Gloucester, Captain Clayton Morrissey, outfooted the Elizabeth Howard of New York and the Shamrock of Boston on every leg and tack. The Ford was two miles from the finish line when time was called, and the others were two miles behind her.

The committee boat for the race today was the destroyer Sherkey. The committee announced that if it were found impossible to finish the race a start would be made daily until favorable conditions were found. Indications early in the day were not promising, as the southwest breeze was very light.

The committee decided to send the boats over course No. 2 if the breeze continued from the southwest. This course reverses the order of sailing followed yesterday around the triangle starting at the first mark. It gives the boats a five mile stretch to the first mark off Milk Island, a seven mile beat to the southwest, seven miles southeast on the next leg, a third seven mile leg north by west back to the first mark and five miles return to the starting point.

ARMOUR'S FORTUNE GROWING RAPIDLY

Chicago, Aug. 31.—J. Ogden Armour's fortune is coming back with rapid strides, as well as the rehabilitation of Armour & Co., it was announced today. In July a semi-annual report was issued showing Armour & Co. had earned $1,460,574 beyond fixed charges and preferred stock dividends. In July it was understood the net earnings were around $3,000,000, all of which is applicable to the $100,000,000 common stock of the corporation, practically all of which is owned by Armour and his family.

way for future negotiations will not be closed.

Governor Pinchot's insertion of an arbitration clause in his program is expected to prove the greatest barrier erected against acceptance. Lewis is squarely on record as saying "the United Workers will never agree to arbitration—whether by President Coolidge, Governor Pinchot or any other man."

Warriner on the other hand is a leading advocate of an arbitration program.

ANSWERS ARE READY.

Upon the recognition of the eight-hour day, miners and operators are in accord. This principle was virtually approved before the Atlantic City conference broke up in deadlock and, since the signing of the maintenance contract, is now on record.

Complete recognition of the principle of collective bargaining, now being in effect, there likewise is little or no disagreement on this point of settlement.

The semi-checkoff, as suggested by Pinchot, is practically in force at the present time.

At many of the mines, the company provides offices for the union treasurers, assisting them in every way in the collection of dues.

The full union wage scale committees met for the last time this morning and drafted the answer Lewis will submit to Governor Pinchot.

PINCHOT STILL HOPEFUL.

The operators' policy committee arrived from Philadelphia, where, yesterday, in Warriner's office, they drafted its reply.

At noon both factions were to appear at Governor Pinchot's office to present their answers. The meeting will be behind closed doors. The Governor's idea is that, since he believes both sides will present a "qualified answer," he may be able to induce them to come to some agreement before midnight.

5 SEEK LIBERTY IN COURT

Plymouth, Aug. 31.—The divorce fever in Plymouth County seems to be almost epidemic. Judging from the number of new suits filed in the office of Clerk of Courts Edward E. Hobart.

Among the latest to desire single blessedness is Charles E. Quigg of Brockton, who charged Ellen W. Quigg, of parts unknown, with desertion, in 1911.

Marion M. Rand of Whitman, charged cruel and abusive treatment against Perley C. Rand, now of Kansas City. She desires the custody of their child, Evelyn E. Rand.

Desertion is alleged by Anna J. McDonough of Brockton in a suit against William McDonough, address unknown. He left home at Rye, N. H., in June, 1918. The plaintiff asked custody of three children.

Lillian R. Clifford of Wareham charged Clarence M. Clifford of that town with non-support and cruelty. She asked the custody of three children.

Pauline T. Baines of Brockton alleged cruel and abusive treatment by August T. Baines of Elizabeth, N. J., while in Brockton in 1908.

present when the boat docked. But no fish men.

PHONES BUZZING.

The telephones started buzzing. Where were the fish men? They were not on the boat. They were not swimming to shore. They were not on Long Island. There was no boat earlier than the one which docked at 7:45.

When Johnson was informed of the facts he was irked.

"I gave orders they were to be taken ashore on this particular boat," he said. "I intend to find out why they were not."

The last report was that he had a line out. All the employes at Long Island are waiting with baited breath to see who will land in the commissioner's net.

HOTEL OF RAIDS LOST IN FIRE

Cranston, R. I., Aug. 31.—The Silver Lake Hotel here was destroyed by fire today which lit up the countryside for miles attracting hundreds of summer visitors. Fire departments of Cranston and Providence fought the blaze, but ineffectually. Seeing the three-story wooden frame structure was doomed efforts were confined to spraying surrounding buildings.

Furnishings alone were valued at $12,000. With the building these were a total loss.

The hotel had been raided on several occasions by prohibition officials. It was leased by James Clancy. Recently Cranston police ordered it closed following a gambling raid which failed when raiders were locked out. It was unoccupied when fire started at 3:30 this morning.

FLYING ANTS INVADE MELROSE AND WAKEFIELD

An army of flying ants swarm through Melrose and Wakefield. Thousands of the flying insects cover the streets, sidewalks and fields. Flying ants have appeared in this vicinity every year, but never in the memory of the oldest inhabitant have they appeared in such large numbers. Residents are hoping that a modern Pied Piper, or something like that, will make his appearance and lead the winged creatures out of town.

TWO KILLED, 10 INJURED, AS BIG STILL EXPLODES

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—Two workmen were killed and ten others injured when a large naphthaline still exploded early today at the dye and chemical works of the Barrett Company in the northeastern part of the city.

The blast rocked the neighborhood and fire that followed destroyed the building which housed the still. Two of the injured may die. The victims were working in a room adjoining the one containing the still when the explosion occurred.

The still was hurled through the roof and landed in a street.

SMITH AND GIRL ARE LINKED

Former Keeper of Gay Camp on River Seen With Providence Victim

Providence, Aug. 31. — A beautiful blonde girl of only twenty years loomed up today as the possible key to the mystery of the shooting of Ernest E. Smith, by day the keen hard-working coal magnate, by night the seeker of pleasure.

While the wealthy man lay still seriously ill from a bullet fired, he says, by an "unknown" woman who mistook him for another man, the police following the trail of the night life of the wounded pillar of a Providence church happened upon the blonde girl.

The blonde girl, they say, has been in his company during the past two weeks. Agatha Blanche Bates, the fashionable mediste, who admits that Smith's backing raised her from a candy counter girl to a position of financial independence, was on her vacation during that period of time.

REVELS IN CAMP.

"Grace" is the name by which the girl is known to the police who are now seeking her. They say that young as the wife of a young New York cotton broker, who is the scion of wealthy and aristocratic Brooklyn family, she maintained a camp on the Providence River, which was the nightly Mecca for the tired married business men of Providence and companions, younger and more beautiful than their wives.

Ernest E. Smith was a frequenter of the camp in his quest of relaxation from the worries of coal shortages, the police say. He was held in high esteem by the young hostess, whose poise, the police say, was so astounding as she moved about the roulette and other gaming tables, solicitous for the welfare of her guests and ever ready to provide novelties when the customary revels failed to arouse the jaded pleasure-seeking men and girls.

WIVES CLOSE RESORT.

Mrs. Agatha Dussch, divorced wife of an humble fireman, now better known as Agatha Blanche Bates, the best-dressed woman in Providence, was also a habitue of the resort, the police say.

So attractive to married men was the salon of the lovely blonde girl and her "husband," and so far did it alienate married men of Providence from affection for their wives, that a clique of Providence society matrons insisted that its activities be summarily stopped.

And so the pleasures of the river camp were held open to only a favored few, among them being Smith and his friend, the fairer woman, the police state. When upon the camp was no longer upon a paying basis. The young New York broker ran out of funds. His aristocratic mother meanwhile had heard of the life he was leading and sought him out in Providence. He was prevailed upon to give up his association with the blonde girl.

APPEALS FOR AID.

The beautiful "Grace" thrown upon her own resources proved equal to the occasion. She appealed to her former men guests for aid and among them Smith, the police say.

The police now seek to learn to what extent he may have aided "Grace" and whether he aroused animosities by so doing.

They are curious to hear of the relations of Smith and the girl during the two weeks the mediste was away in Pennsylvania visiting her mother.

GIRL IN VIGIL FOR BOY WHO SHOT SELF

NELLIE GILBERT

Hub youth denies knowing girl who calls him her "Darling Jimmy" and threw a rose on his stretcher on way to hospital where she waits on steps for him to "relent."

HERBERT RAPHAEL

A bobbed haired girl who says she is Nellie Gilbert of West Dedham street, South End, keeps a lone vigil on the steps of the Haymarket Square Relief Station, where her "darling Jimmie" lies wounded.

"Jimmie," the girl says, is Herbert Raphel, seventeen years old who was removed to the hospital after he shot himself accidentally in the shoulder at the factory where he is employed, No. 478 Washington street. His uncle is the proprietor.

When she heard of the shooting, the girl rushed to the factory. She arrived as he was being removed to the hospital in the ambulance and struggled to climb into the conveyance.

Denied admittance, she flung a rose into his room, and went to the hospital. Young Raphel refused to see the girl, declaring he does not know her.

He told a Boston American reporter that a girl unknown to him visited his office shortly before the shooting and greeted him as "Jimmie darling." He repulsed her advances, he said, and sent her away.

Upset urbed by the rebuffs, Miss Gilbert seated herself on the front steps of the hospital, hoping that her "Jimmie" may relent.

HOLD NURSE IN MURDER OF YOUTH

Slain Jersey Boy's Aunt Also Detained; Quarrel Furnishes Death Clew

Catskill, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Working on the theory that Howard Rothenberg, seven, son of Charles Rothenberg, treasurer of S. A. Rothenberg Company, hat manufacturers of Newark, was murdered on a lonely road near the Windham Summer colony to shut his mouth, Greene County officials and State police today cross-examined Mrs. Esther Litt, twenty-eight, of Brooklyn, the boy's aunt, and Anna Sobin, sixteen, a nursemaid in the Rothenberg home, detained as material witnesses in the investigation.

The investigation was ordered by District Attorney Charles G. Coffin of Greene County after he learned that there had been a violent quarrel between the Rothenbergs and Litt families.

The nature of the quarel is not known to the authorities, but according to information given to Coffin Mrs. Rothenberg, Mrs. Litt and Solomon Litt her husband, took part. The alleged quarrel took place in a cottage at Windham several days ago.

Immediately after the quarrel, Mr. Coffin a informant said, Mr. Litt left Windham for Brooklyn.

It was about this quarrel, it is said, that Mrs. Litt and Miss Sobin were questioned.

Mrs. Litt and Mrs. Rothenberg had been spending the summer at the farm homes of Henry Brantough of Windham.

"I have nothing to say now," said Assist Attorney Coffin after the investigation. "I may have an announcement to make later."

While the District Attorney examined Mrs. Litt and Miss Sobin, State troopers sought a young man dressed in a light suit who, according to Miss Sobin, was seen talking to the boy after he started on the fishing trip that ended in his murder.

A young man similarly dressed, Windham villagers said, was seen here and appeared very much excited.

Coroner C. D. Mulbury, called after the child's body had been found in a clump of weeds, said death had been caused by strangulation. He said he found several pieces of boy's underwear wrapped about the child's throat and that there were finger marks on its throat.

The authorities learned that the undergarments belong to the boy's baby sister and had been taken from a clothes line on the Rothenbergh farm.

"I am convinced that the child was not killed by a pervert or a degenerate," said Coroner Mulbury. "It was a deliberate murder.

"It looks to me as if the child was killed to shut its mouth. The child was not killed where the body was found. There was dirt on his shoes and stockings and there was evidence that the body was placed in the bushes.

"I looked carefully and found no trace of a thistle. Life had been extinct four hours when the body was found."

According to Sergeant G. F. Sager of the State Police, in charge of the troopers at work on the case, the boy left home Wednesday at 8 a. m. to go on a fishing trip. When he did not return several hours later Mrs. Rosenberg became alarmed and started a search.

R. I. MAN DESERTS WIFE AND BABE

Martin G. MacInnes, twenty-one years old, of Providence, deserted his young wife and fifteen months-old son in North Station, after arriving here with them from Providence.

This is the explanation of the police and of Mrs. Violet MacInnes, twenty-one years old, for her husband's mysterious disappearance. Mrs. MacInnes was found by a policeman at Beverly and Causeway streets, West End, wandering aimlessly, her child, Ernest, in her arms. Her husband, she said, often threatened to leave her.

The police have announced they will secure a warrant for her husband's arrest if he does not appear today. Mrs. MacInnes said that she is about to give birth to a second child.

SEEKS TO AVERT MIDDLESEX CAR STRIKE

President Pat F. Drew of the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company announced today that he had selected a third arbitrator to adjust differences between the road and its employes who threaten to strike unless satisfactory arrangements for arbitration are reached before 6 o'clock tonight.

Mr. Drew said he would submit the candidate's name to Attorney James H. Vahey, counsel for the employes, as soon as he could get in touch with the latter. Under the terms of the ultimatum voted by the street car men last night, 400 motormen and conductors who operate 100 miles of street car lines will walk out on the eve of the Labor Day rush unless President Drew selects an arbitrator who, in the opinion of the employes, will be strictly neutral.

"I cannot divulge the name of the man I have selected," said President Drew, "until I have conferred with Mr. Vahey and ascertained whether he will be acceptable to the other side. I have already named a dozen people as factors in the strike, but none of the highest standing who have been turned down.

"The trouble is that the other side demanded that I agree to an arbitrator of their choice. I don't consider that arbitration."

The employes claim the company has dodged arbitration by every possible subterfuge, even going to court about the case of the conductor who was ordered to act as motorman on a car and who discharged because the car figured in an accident.

A new wage scale and a new time scale are factors in the strike.

The result in Limerick was a surprise, the two sitting Anti-treaty members being defeated.

2 OFFICERS AND NEGRO SLAIN IN RIOT

floors are believed to have escaped to nearby hills.

The dead are: John A. James, a county detective; Joseph Abraham, a constable and private detective; Robert Young, a negro.

The three men who were not expected to live and who were taken to a Jacksontown hospital are Police Captain Otto Fink, Lieutenant William Bender and Patrolman Joseph Grachen. These officers suffered injuries less serious.

As the officers were climbing out of their automobiles at Rosedale to investigate a shooting that had led to the police call, they were greeted by a volley of bullets from a roadside shanty, which has been unused for several months.

The fire of the assailants was quickly returned and one negro, shot through the abdomen, was instantly killed. The assailants then fled.

COTTAGE FIRED BY LAWRENCE INCENDIARY

Lawrence, Aug. 31.—The police and firemen today are seeking a man of foreign appearance, wearing a gray sweater and army trousers believed to have applied a torch to the cottage at No. 161 Union street, occupied by John Mortacunos. Mortacunis and one daughter, the only members of the family at home, were aroused by John Kowall, a neighbor, and escaped to the street in their night clothing. The cottage, the first floor used as a grocery, was practically destroyed at a loss estimated at $800.

The authorities, who started an investigation under the direction of Fire Chief F. J. Morris, learned that a short time after fire also broke out in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Holis, No. 167 Union street. The couple made their way to safety and the blaze was extinguished with small loss.

Shortly after midnight today a man bearing the description given, and apparently intoxicated, appeared in the neighborhood, ringing doorbells and knocking on doors. Shortly before the fire was discovered he was seen near the Mortacunis house.

SKILLINGS' MEN IN NEW HUNT FOR BURGLARS

Captain Perley S. Skillings' men did let a flock of safe crackers slip through the lines and escape the other night, but the lesson he learned was in evidence today when the same gang of marauders were suspected of renewing hostilities at the Epstein Drug Company store, Tremont row.

Policeman Harry Kershaw discovered an open window in the rear of the building. Figuring that the safe men were operating inside, Harry pointed himself at the window and awaited developments.

The Station 2 flivver, which in the days swhills had been touring for suspicious persons, appeared in Pemberton Hill and Kershaw called. Out jumped Sergeant Parrell and a half dozen plain clothese men.

BUILDING SEARCHED.

Purcell shot men onto the roof and quickly had the territory surrounded.

Kershaw, the biggest man in the police department, climbed through the window on the roof and with other officers searched for a half hour.

The original suspicions proved a fizzle, but one thing is certain. Houdini couldn't have escaped the trap set by the sergeant.

Captain Skillings, through an order issued by the superintendent of police, said that the cracksmen who operated in the building on Wednesday were scared off before the police arrived. He forgot to mention, it appears, that they might have cost the lives of one or more policemen had they faced actual gunfire.

WORKED IN DARKNESS.

Policemen on that night worked in utter darkness and scampered over rain-soaked roofs without so much as a pocket flash light. Often they slipped and nearly fell into the courtyard below. On the other hand, had they come face to face with the bandits, they could have been shot at without being able to ascertain where to return the fire.

Sergeant Berry discovered their peril when he appeared on the scene. He telephoned the station house for flash lights and when they reported there were none, hunted the district until he was able to borrow one from a night watchman. Even that, however, was too weak for use.

Hay Fever Dodgers Flee When Cure Catches Fire

Bethlehem, N. H., Aug. 31.—An attempted demonstration of a cure for hay fever caused a near-panic among the 300 assembled Golden Rod Dodgers who are here attending the fiftieth annual meeting of the United States Hay Fever Association.

The demonstrator, as a prelude to an experiment which he was about to carry out, was heating a solution with a can of inflammable material when he upset the flaming receptacle.

Members made a hurried exit, but the flames were extinguished before much damage was done.

7,000 ALIENS ON LINERS DUE IN HUB TONIGHT

To 7,000 folks from foreign lands tonight's the night.

Four steamships bringing that many immigrants to Boston are speeding to dock by midnight when the September immigration quota opens. First arrival will be the White Star liner Samaria from Queenstown and Liverpool. She will dock in East Boston. They will come the Columbia from Glasgow and the Celtic on other Winfredian from Liverpool.

The country is getting a higher class of immigrants since the new percentage law went into effect according to Immigration Commissioner General Husband in New York.

QUOTAS EXHAUSTED.

He said the quota for the fiscal year ending Monday 31 next will be exhausted by the first of the year. During the first two months of this fiscal year, Husband announced to day, nearly 125,000 of the yearly total of 357,803 had already entered the United States. Each foreign country is allowed 20 per cent. of its entire yearly quota each month.

The most conspicuous fact about the present high rate of immigration is that it is from northern and western European countries, such as Great Britain, Germany, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Netherlands, the citizens of which are declared to be more desirable as immigrants.

CHECKS SOUTH EUROPE.

One of the primary purposes of the quota law was to check immigration from southern and eastern European countries and encourage it from the northern and western nations.

Here is how immigration has increased this year over last year from northern and western European countries:

Country	Number entered up to Aug. 25, 1922	Number entered up to Aug. 25, 1923
Great Britain	8,302	20,003
Finland	710	858
Germany	4,018	13,091
Netherlands	430	1,047
Norway	1,160	3,225
Sweden	1,999	7,737
Switzerland	605	1,495

ACTRESS 'PALS' WITH DIVORCED HUSBAND

New York, Aug. 31.—Margaret Lawrence, the actress, obtained a divorce about a year ago from Orson D. Munn, wealthy New York patent lawyer, to whom she had been married about nine years, it was learned today.

Virtually nothing of the difficulties between Mr. and Mrs. Munn was known to the public. They were regarded for years as being especially devoted to each other. They have two daughters, Elizabeth and Louise, eight and six years old.

According to a close friend of the Munn's, relations between the two remain perfectly "amicable and friendly." When the divorce was obtained provision was made that each parent should have possession of the children part of the year. Mrs. Munn's residence in this city is at 850 Park avenue.

Margaret Lawrence, one of the best known light comedy actresses, made a sudden success in 1919 in a farce called "Over Night." Just as she won public approval, however, she left the stage and it was learned she had married Mr. Munn, then an ensign in the navy.

U. S. SOON TO NAME ENVOY TO MEXICO

Washington, Aug. 31.—Only the formal announcement of a resumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexican governments remains as the last act necessary to its consummation, all preliminary exchanges between the two governments having been successfully concluded.

Means already have been provided for accrediting the charges at the American and Mexican embassies, although full diplomatic relations will be delayed for a short time, while ambassadors are being selected for the respective posts.

Secretly Divorced

MARGARET LAWRENCE.

It became known today in New York that Margaret Lawrence, actress, obtained a divorce about a year ago from Orson D. Munn, wealthy New York patent lawyer, to whom she had been married about nine years.

Whiskey Scarce in America, Says Volstead

London, Aug. 31.—Andrew J. Volstead, author of the American prohibition act, says in an interview here that he has never seen a glass of whiskey since prohibition went into effect," he declares, "that the great bulk of people in America have never seen whiskey since. All this bootleg talk is confined to a small section. Whiskey is extremely scarce."

"I don't know," answered the daughter of our most ardent trout fisherman. "What's the legal limit?"

FLARING WIRE CAUSES SCARE IN CHELSEA

Hundreds of residents along a half-mile stretch of Broadway, Chelsea, were given a scare several persons narrowly escaped serious injury, and street car traffic between Boston and Revere was blockaded several hours when a trolley wire snapped on Broadway between Cary and Crescent avenues.

The accident caused all the street car wires to sag between five and six feet for the entire stretch along Broadway to Chelsea square. For several minutes the district was ablaze with vivid flashes and flares of pyrotechnics.

When the half-mile of trolley wires sagged, the wires connected with the switches at Everett avenue. Bellingham square and Gerrish square became red hot and the insulation in the switch boxes began to burn. Smoke from blazing insulation filled one of the restaurants at Bellingham square, forcing the occupants into the street.

Cars returning from Boston to Revere and Lynn were crowded at the time of the accident, and one of the cars was within a few yards of the place where the 75-foot length of trolley wire dropped on the tracks. The motorman had difficulty in stopping his car before it reached the sputtering wire.

HUB DOPE RING SMASHED BY 3 ARRESTS

A smashing blow at what is believed to be the largest ring of dope peddlars in Boston was delivered in three arrests by Federal narcotic agents. Under the direction of Agent-in-Charge William D. Allen, Jr., a suspected dope peddlar and a quantity of morphine were taken in each of three sections.

As a result of the activities of Agents Henry L. O'Malley, Charles J. Voelker and William E. Daly, all peddlars have scurried to cover while addicts are frantic now that the principal source of their supply has been cut off.

Hughie Boyle, forty-two years old, of No. 3 Flagg street, Roxbury, was the last man arrested. The others were James Marshall, colored, and Guy Perelli.

Boyle was taken at Brookline and Washington streets, South End. Marshall was caught in Cambridge, and Perelli was captured after a struggle in Scollay Square.

The agents also raided what is believed to be a clearing house for the sale of drugs in Cambridge, but the arrest of the three peddlars had evidently served as a warning for no drugs were found. Evidence was found that drugs had been hidden there only a few hours previously.

In the fight in which Perelli was arrested Agent O'Malley was so battered he was sent to the Marine Hospital for treatment.

Despite the fact that O'Malley was badly battered he stuck to his man, fought him down a flight of steps leading to a barber shop and finally subdued him and placed him under arrest. When his prisoner was lodged in the police station, the federal agent was taken to the hospital to have his own wounds dressed.

Marshall and Perelli were each held in $5000 bail when arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes. Boyle awaits arraignment.

HEAD OF BARTA PRESS FETED ON RETIRING

A surprise dinner, reception and entertainment was given Charles L. Dunton, president of the Barta Press, Cambridge, on the occasion of his retirement after forty-three years continuous association with the company.

Mr. Dunton, at his desk as usual, was "lured" from the office on a pretext by fellow employes, and taken on an automobile trip that kept him from the office more than an hour. When he returned, the offices had been converted into a banquet hall. Charles C. Hanley, an employe, who has worked with Mr. Dunton for thirty-eight years, presented the retiring president with a Maximum Williams watch on behalf of the employes.

Mr. Dunton plans to tour the world, beginning with a year's motor trip between the Atlantic and the Pacific, during which he will visit the principal points of interest in the United States and Canada.

Sleepwalker Climbs Into Chimney; Call Firemen to Rescue

Huntington, L. I., Aug. 31.—Firemen today extricated Marston Coffin, nineteen years old, from the chimney of the Archie Roosevelt home on Turkey Lane, Cold Spring Harbor, into which he climbed and became wedged while walking in his sleep last night.

The Coffin family had rented the house for the Summer. Marston Coffin slept in a room on the second floor. While asleep, he arose, opened a dormer window and walked out upon the roof. The brick chimney was breast-high and he climbed into it. He weighs 150 pounds and he slid down about twenty feet, when he became wedged in an elbow of the chimney.

VICTIM ESCAPES FLOGGING GANG

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 31.—With the city and county in control of State military authorities under martial law, to suppress flogging, seven masked men abducted W. J. Matthews on a downtown corner, and took him seven miles into the country. As they prepared to flog him, Matthews escaped in the darkness.

Today he described his experiences to Adjutant-General B. H. Markham, in charge of the situation. He said the men drove up to him, dragged him into their automobile and kicked him so severely during the ride that one rib was broken.

One of his abductors, he said, was a fellow employe with whom he recently had a quarrel over some money.

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Deputy Attorney General O'Neill in Supreme Court declared Walter Ward will be convicted of the murder of Clarence M. Peters, cashier. He characterized Ward as an "abnormal in a it who would not require "mental reasons" for his deeds.

Walter Ward

O'Neill's statements were made in his opposing speech to the motion of Ward's attorneys that the indictment be dismissed, or that the charge be reduced to manslaughter.

Judge Wagner, specially appointed by the Governor to act in the notorious case, reserved decision on the motion of the Ward attorneys. He indicated he would adjourn the trial, scheduled for next Tuesday, to the following Monday to study the grand jury minutes.

TRAIN HITS STEAM SHOVEL; TWO INJURED

One man was seriously injured and a woman slightly hurt, as a result of an unusual train wreck near Needham Junction, when a passenger train from Boston crashed into a steam shovel, demolishing the cab and two cars. The train struck the projecting arm of the steel derrick, which tore the cab from the locomotive. The left side of the baggage car and the smoker were ripped away, and windows of the passenger cars shattered.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS FILM WRITER'S DEATH

Santa Monica, Cal., Aug. 31.—Herbert Jones, thirty-seven, said to be a wealthy motion picture scenario writer and director, died in a hospital here. He was found unconscious in his home. His feet and legs were burned, although there was no sign of a fire in his home or near it. Near his bed was a tube from which six tablets of a sedative drug had been removed.

THEY'LL MISS JOE'S FLATIRON; OLD TONGMAN DIES IN PRISON

The little touch Joe Guey gave to a white coat he starched and ironed is gone from Charlestown Prison forever.

Joe starched and ironed the white coats and trousers for the hospital department. He did an immaculate job, taking pride in the manner in which he pushed an iron as he crooned strange Chinese melodies over his task.

Joe died today.

Back in 1903 he was convicted in a tong war in Boston's Chinatown. They said Joe was a hatchet man—a killer. He was one of five Chinamen convicted. Three left their lives in the electric chair, another died.

Joe, sixty-five years old, patiently resigned to his fate, was the last of the quintette to "shove off." He died in the hospital of heart failure. Next Friday the Governor's pardon board would have acted on Joe Guey's application for freedom.

HUB POLICE ARREST 16 IN ROUND UP OF CROOKS

Boston police arrested 16 men in a roundup of crooks. Police Superintendent Crowley declares roving bands of thieves and gunmen are infesting the city after being driven from New York and other cities [illegible] he was aroused by the escape of seven who were surprised while attempting to break into the safe of Egan's drug store in Scollay Sq., near police headquarters.

"Get this gang and get it quickly," is Crowley's order.

HOLD LYNN MAN IN 'SKYSCRAPER BUBBLE' CASE

Los Angeles, Aug. 31.—E. J. Koerner, of Lynn, Mass., for many years a resident of that city, is under arrest here on the charge of obtaining $1,375 under false pretense from M. H. Durfee, an Anaheim builder.

Koerner's arrest follows bursting of the so-called "Santa Ana skyscraper bubble," which originated in July when Koerner first appeared in Santa Ana. According to the police, he won the confidence of prominent citizens with a proposal to erect a large building at Fourth and Bush streets.

Koerner, the police say, obtained a 99-year lease on the corner property and also obtained an agreement to take over the adjacent buildings, for ness men.

Wife Says Husband Drinks 3 Gallons of Wine Daily

Haverhill, Aug. 31.—Louis Grassi, No. 98 River street, consumes three gallons of Italian wine every day, his wife told Judge Otis J. Carleton, when he was arraigned on a continued drunkenness charge.

The court gave Grassi 30 days, but suspended sentence until September 22. She said he was a good husband except when he drank. The wife said only 25 gallons of wine remained of nine barrels that he put in the cellar less than six months ago.

which he gave a $3,500 check to D. L. Anderson. It was alleged that he had but $70 in the bank toward the payment.

Koerner lived for many years in West Lynn, Mass. and came here a few months ago. He is a dapper appearing chap and his suave talk had much effect on local prominent business men.

State Officer Richard Griffin, and the local officers were present.

The local police learned the murder car was the property of a Lowell professional man, and that he had been treating the wound of one of the trio, although he is not a physician.

This man, together with several friends, was placed under surveillance. Yesterday, with three others, also characterized as professional men, he was subjected to a severe cross examination. Eventually he weakened and gave the required information.

The Baby Mummy
"But Not for Love"
How Many Thoughts?
Dempsey Studies Spanish

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, by Star Company.

THREE MORALS in this news:

Mr. Sterling a United States ethnologist, digs up a mummy Indian baby in South Dakota. For one full grown Indian found, there were three dead babies. Show that to friends, who advise you to "bring up your children according to Nature." That's how Indian children were raised and killed.

The baby mummy were copper ornaments, dug up just as fresh as when they were buried, thousands of years ago. If they had put iron ornaments on that baby, nothing would be left.

Use copper instead of iron, when you can.

FINALLY, what would that baby Indian mummy have said it told that the Governor of South Dakota was selling gasoline to the people at 16 cents a gallon to break down monopoly? It would have said: "That's wrong; it's paternalism." Some white men now know as little as that Indian baby knew.

DAVID BELASCO says Franklin Sargent, successful dramatic teacher, killed himself for love of Mary Anderson. She married somebody else, years ago. He hadn't seen her since. None the less he grieved, mourned, died.

So says Belasco. Shakespeare says, "Men have died, and worms have eaten them, but not for love." Dante lost Beatrice, she also married somebody else. Dante was satisfied to give her the most important place in Paradise next to the Trinity and the Queen of Heaven, while he lived on. Shakespeare probably was right; Mr. Belasco wrong. Men are too selfish to kill themselves for love. In addition, they enjoy contemplation of their devotions and sorrows. "Nothing is so dainty sweet as lovely melancholy."

OUR RISING and falling generation last year smoked almost six thousand million cigarettes. The war killed off beer and wine, through prohibition enthusiasm, and established the cigarette on a permanent, respectable basis. Our heroes were rolling their own, or buying them rolled. It was unpatriotic to criticize them.

Young gentlemen, tell you "I THINK better when I smoke."

How many original thoughts went with the six thousand million cigarettes? Do you suppose one for every ten million? Doubtful.

But don't criticize tobacco. Men must be foolish, and tobacco is the least harmful folly.

JACK DEMPSEY IS studying Spanish, to compliment or insult Firpo, according to circumstances, when they meet in the prize ring. Firpo can already say "Knock your block off." Nothing like education.

An old saying goes: "Spanish is the language of heroes, Italian of lovely women, French of diplomacy, English and German the language of horses." That was a Latin opinion.

Dempsey will be amazed at the power and the beauty of Spanish, and will find Cervantes' Knight of the Mirrors a most amusing character—and not unlike a modern prize fighter.

GIFFORD PINCHOT OFFERS an eight-hour day and 10 per cent. increase for coal miners. The public will approve. It means less than sixty cents increase per ton. All know how easily mine owners, railroads, middlemen, jobbers, tack on sixty cents, to say nothing of six dollars. Plenty of profits in the present price to allow that slight increase.

The United States Coal Commission reports that between the mine and the consumer there were "four wholesale purchasers and profits," in addition to the profits of mine owners, retailers and railroads.

THE KU KLUX KLAN of Scottsdale, Pa., organizing a great parade for next Saturday, asks members to come "Prepared to meet the Knights of Columbus." Those that belong to no secret organization, feeling that citizenship in the United States is a sufficient "society," wonder why it is necessary to add secret organizations to the other troubles of the police.

STAR TIED AND GAGGED; LOSES $15,000 GEMS

Former "Follies" girl gagged by bandits at gun point in New York apartment. She is shown holding the monkey mascot of the "Follies."

AVONNE TAYLOR

New York, Aug. 31.—Avonne Taylor, former "Follies" girl, now a film actress, was $15,000 poorer today following the visit of two robbers to her apartment.

In a sensational daylight robbery the bandits bound, gagged and robbed the actress after gaining admission to her apartment in the guise of messengers delivering flowers.

They worked with the utmost unconcern, first tying a handkerchief over her mouth and then fastening her to her bed with strips torn from bed sheets.

POKE GUN IN FACE.

Miss Taylor was released by Gilbert Darrel, superintendent of the apartment house, when the woman living in an adjacent building informed him of the actress' predicament.

Miss Taylor said that one of the men appeared at her apartment with a flower box and an envelope bearing the imprint of the Hotel Biltmore. Just as she extended her hand for the box, the other robber appeared and pointed a revolver at her.

She gasped and stepped back. The robbers followed, forced her into the drawing room and gagged her.

Threatening her with death, they demanded her jewels. She pointed to her jewel box in the top drawer of a bureau. They emptied it, slipping into their pockets, among other objects, a sapphire bracelet, a sapphire and diamond ring purchased in Paris for $3,000; a square emerald and a square cut diamond ring valued at $7,500, a platinum watch with a platinum chain, set with diamonds; four pearl necklaces, and several other rings and brooches. Her jewels were insured for only $2,500.

In their search the robbers found a revolver. It was unloaded and they commented on this fact.

BOUND WITH SHEETS.

After the apartment had been ransacked the robbers threw Miss Taylor on her bed and tied her there face down with strips torn from the sheets. As they walked from the room one said:

"You stay here and watch her. If she makes a move croak her."

The actress waited a few minutes, then managed to rise from the bed. She attracted the attention of a woman in an apartment across the way and her rescue followed.

Miss Taylor told the police that one of the men wore gloves, presumably to eliminate finger prints. Both robbers, she said, wore blue suits and straw hats, were of medium height and about thirty years old.

SUSPENDED COP CALLED WEIRD YARN SPINNER

Lester D. Hill, suspended mounted policeman, was branded as the owner of a "weird imagination" today by Mounted Officer Francis E. Sullivan, one of the four Back Bay policemen who, Hill says, beat him unmercifully early Saturday last.

Hill was suspended on a charge of drunkenness and being scantily attired on Commonwealth avenue. He had been calling on his fiancee, Emily J. Bell, a manicurist, who lives at No. 726 Commonwealth avenue. Hill says he was "framed."

"What a weird imagination Hill has," said Officer Sullivan when interviewed at No. 250 Massachusetts avenue. "His statements are all lies. We didn't beat him in the patrol wagon, for the simple reason he was dead drunk then.

"He was practically unconscious. We went to his sweetheart's place to get him because Officer Dunsford had entered a complaint about Hill's attack upon him and the captain ordered us to bring Hill in.

DOCTOR DEFENDS COP

"The captain told us to do this for the 'good of the service.'"

Dunsford, at his home, No. 2 Lothian road, Brighton, told a similar story. "Hill was dead drunk," said Dunsford. "His story that we beat him is a lie."

A physician will testify in Hill's behalf when he faces Police Commissioner Wilson on September 10.

He has been summoned by Attorney John P. Feeney, who will conduct the suspended policeman's defense. He will testify that he talked with Hill within one hour of the time he went to the Back Bay station in the custody of four policemen and was locked up on a drunkenness charge. The doctor will say that Hill was sober.

HILL WAS THREATENED.

Hill's life was threatened previous to Saturday, his mother, Mrs. Ernest Hill, of Reading, charges. Telephone warnings came to the Hill home warning the mother that her son was going to be "gotten into trouble."

Miss Bell, whom Hill planned to marry a month ago, filing marriage intentions at City Hall, will testify at her fiancee's trial.

SUSPENDED IN REVERE SCANDAL

Police Lieutenant O'Hara, Accused of Connection With Bootleggers

Lieutenant Thomas F. O'Hara of the Revere police was suspended from the department by Chief John J. Dyer on charges of being connected with a band of Revere rum-runners.

Chief Dyer explained his reasons for suspending Lieutenant O'Hara by declaring that he had detected evidence pointing to unofficial and undue relations between the lieutenant and Revere bootleggers. The formal charges against the lieutenant were those of conduct unbecoming an officer and neglect of duty.

"Two truckloads of alcohol are concerned in the suspension of Lieutenant O'Hara," Chief Dyer said. "One night recently I went to the station while the lieutenant was in charge.

TRUCKLOADS OF ALCOHOL.

"Outside of the station was a truckload of alcohol. An officer entered just then and informed me that there was another truckload of alcohol parked on Hyde street, near the station, with the lights of the truck turned out. The drivers of the two trucks were in the guard room.

"I questioned the drivers and then asked Lieutenant O'Hara what the truckload of alcohol in the truck with the lights out was doing on Hyde street.

"O'Hara became indignant at this and exclaimed:

"'Are you calling me a thief?'

"I told him I was satisfied that if I had not come in at that time that truckload of booze would not have been confiscated. Just then two well known bootleggers entered the station. O'Hara failed to explain their presence or the presence of the truck on Hyde street."

Suspended at the same time was Patrolman Harry McKinley, also charged with conduct unbecoming an officer and neglect of duty. His misdemeanors, Chief Dyer charged, consist of irregularities in the arrest of drunken drivers of automobiles.

McKinley, Chief Dyer charged, arrested a well known milk dealer after he had run into a man in North Revere while driving his automobile. The man, Dyer said, was drunk. Yet, he added, McKinley merely charged him with drunkenness and completely ignored the charge of operating while under the influence of liquor.

National Beauty Competition at Atlantic City Attracts Wide Interest

The system of judging this year in the National Beauty Show at Atlantic City will be entirely different from last.

The inter-city beauties will be divided into five geographical divisions—New England and New York, the Middle Atlantic, Southern, Mid-West and Far-West. The judges of the inter-city beauties will be artists of national reputation for each division.

There will be three prizes in each divison. After these are chosen, all except the chairmen of the five boards of judges will drop out. The five chairmen will pick from among the fifteen girls, together with Miss Margaret Gorman of Washington, D. C., who won two years ago and Miss Mary K. Campbell who won last year.

HUNT CAMBRIDGE BOY FIREBUG

The Neapolitan Ice Cream Company stables at No. 160-164 Norfolk street, Cambridge, and ten wagons were destroyed and nineteen horses were rescued in a fire which caused a loss said by officials to be $20,000.

The police accuse a ten-year-old boy of setting the blaze, and they also accuse him of setting three other fires in ten days, which have caused a total loss of $50,000.

It was necessary to place grain bags over the heads of the frightened horses in order to get them out.

Intense excitement prevailed on Norfolk street, when the animals, terrorized by the blaze, ran wild through the streets.

Ten wagons owned by the Neapolitan Company were destroyed.

'PONY EXPRESS' DASHING ACROSS THE PLAINS

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 31.—Sixty old years ago a horseman waited impatiently here for a wheezy train to arrive from Hannibal with mail from the East so he could cross the Missouri and begin his dash across the Indian country and the desert stretching for the Pacific.

Today, another horseman waited for the President of the United States, a thousand miles away to the eastward, to send a signal that started him on the historic route of the old-fashioned means of transportation.

Today, St. Joseph revived the pony-express of 1860. Horses were taken to their stations, every ten or twelve miles covering the first leg of the westward trip from St. Joseph to St. Mary's Kan. This morning the horses and their riders are ready for the dash which is to reproduce that of sixty years ago, by hastening on, day and night until the Golden Gate is reached a week from Sunday. Two hundred and forty-three horses are to be used.

Miss Ruth Wiseman will have the first sixty miles of the run in Nevada.

Another of the riders will be William S. Tevis, Jr., a polo player, whose grandfather was president of the Wells-Fargo express company. Tevis will attempt to make the entire trip across California, 375 miles.

ASHMONT WOMAN ROBBED ON STREET

Margaret Stevenson, of No. 405 Ashmont street, Ashmont, while walking along Ashmont street, towards Dorchester avenue, was assaulted and robbed by a man when opposite No. 390. He grabbed her pocketbook, ran across several lots and through side streets and escaped.

COOLIDGE'S NERVE CURE FOR PUBLIC

Dispenses With Regular Cabinet Meetings in Psychological Experiment

Washington, Aug. 30.—President Coolidge is trying an experiment in national psychology.

The country is naturally uncertain and perhaps agitated by the advent of a new administration and he thinks it would be a good thing for both country and administration if popular attention were not centred on Washington. This is the reason for the cancellation of the regular Cabinet meetings. There are to be no more of them until some occasion arises that merits a conference of government minds.

This will be the first period since President Wilson from his sick bed ordered a suspension of the session and, as part of the same proceeding, accepted the resignation of Secretary of State Lansing that the routine has been broken. It has been axiomatic that when the President is at Washington the Cabinet shall come together Tuesdays and Fridays.

Instead of meeting the whole government at once, he sees the department heads individually, as occasion requires, which process suits the Coolidge taker as well as squaring with his psychological experiment. If the matter involves more than one department, he has those interested over to the White House. Or the Secretary of Labor, for example, does have to listen and give his views on something appertaining to the navy, which sort of thing made the Cabinet meetings such long drawn out affairs.

Incidentally, when the President was acquainting his advisers of the new order of things, he took occasion to tell them that he regarded the Cabinet as it stood as one of the best the country ever had. Moreover, he said that they knew more about the particular problems of their respective departments than he could possibly know and assured them that he had neither the desire nor intention to interfere.

JESSICA BROWN AT OLD BUFFALO HOME

Buffalo, N. Y. Aug. 31.—Being a great honorer to goodness countess has not changed Lady Rose Hill, Countess of North Eak, better known in Buffalo, New York and London as Jessica Brown. She has just returned to her home in this city with her husband, The Countess was laughing as she said:

"You know I'm still Jess, even though people persist in giving me a lot of nobility, and think I must have changed. There is really nothing so curious about a girl's finding a happy culmination to her love story. It's love, you know, that really counts." Plans for the journey to the North Esk estate in England will probably be completed this week.

FLAGMAN'S QUICK WIT SAVES AUTOIST

Flagman John R. King of the Boston & Maine Railroad saved Alfred A. Levy, Bridgeport, Ct., grocery salesman, from possible death when he ran to a crossing at Chapman street, Salem, opened the door of Levy's automobile, which had stalled on the tracks, and hustled Levy out just before the car was struck by a Boston bound train.

The locomotive, which was slowing down for the station, struck the automobile and spun it around and pushed it from the tracks, damaging it slightly.

SHACKLES FOR LOVE

DO YOU TRY TO KEEP IT THAT WAY?

By Beatrice Fairfax

Who Occupies a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on the Problems of Girls.

DO you try to shackle love with chains—or claims? Do you insist that your husband or your fiance or your mother or your child give you the love you crave, or do you accept the voluntary offering of the love he or she holds as ideal?

Whatever is given freely is beautiful, as all freely offered gifts are lovely. What is demanded as a right is paid as a tribute and not as a gift.

Love should be a response to our deservings, not a tribute imposed by a tyrant. We all know that the gift without the giver is bare, but how can the gift carry with it anything of the giver if it is an enforced payment in terms of what some one else demands, rather than our offering at the shrine of love?

When a man or woman feels a sense of obligation in love then the spontaneous fervor goes and as sense of prison walls sets in. And love cannot thrive in a cage—or a prison. Love needs the sunlight if it is to grow.

How do you feel toward your mother and yourself—at the moment when you have put down the story you were eager to finish and have offered to do the dishes so she can rest her tired feet? Is it that free gift of yourself inspiring? And if she had demanded that you wash dishes, you might have thought bitterly that you work hard in an office all day and that it isn't fair for her to demand that you do housework when you get home. And if you had set there watching her drag herself about wearily, you might have hated yourself and your selfishness so bitterly that part of your resentment against yourself would have been transferred to her.

Apply the same thing to the love between man and woman. What you offer freely makes you happy and enriches your beloved when it is received. What you give in response to a demand makes you chafe at the chains imposed on you. What you selfishly withhold impoverishes you both.

A married man told me the other day that one of the things that made him fall twice as much in love with his wife as he was when he was courting her, was her urging him to take one or two nights a week and go bowling or to a show or have a roundup of some sort with his fraternity brothers.

"I'll bet she misses me all right," he said. "But she never lets on. And she doesn't let me feel I'm doing anything but what she likes to have me when I hop out on my own once in a while. Say, if she insisted on my staying home, I don't know how I'd act—but you can bet your bottom dollar as long as she's so unselfish and leaves me so free, I don't strain much to get away, and I wouldn't do a thing to hurt her or disappoint her if I knew it. No siree. That little girl leaves me free, she's got me chained for life."

And that is about how it works—doesn't it?

Mrs. Reed Anthony a Marblehead Neck Leader, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

DARK-HAIRED Mrs. Reed P. Anthony's popularity with the younger married set in the Marblehead Neck colony makes us add her to our "Who's News Along the North Shore."

The former Mary Hartwell, a most attractive brunette, was married in the Fall of 1921 to young Anthony, member of the Harvard '19 class. The ceremony took place out Cheltenham Hill way, the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Townsend Hartwell. Following the wedding, the young couple made their home with the groom's mother, Mrs. Randolph Frothingham of Commonwealth avenue.

Just this week, however, Mrs. Anthony came up from the Shore while the household goods of the Anthonys were moved into their new home at No. 56 Mountfort street.

At the time that announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Hartwell to young Reed P. Anthony, the former was taking part in the Vincent Club show, "When North Meets South." She was, in fact, a member of the famous "Fan Drill," each member of this feature being selected with due regard for pulchritude. She belongs to the 1919-20 Sewing Circle, along with such prominent girls as Penelope Curtis, Rosamond Adie, Elizabeth Cassell, Louisa Weld, Hope Gaston and Ella Snelling.

Of this group, by the way, two members, Elizabeth—or "Sister" Caswell as she is called, and vivacious Louisa Weld are scheduled to join the Lohengrin processional this Fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Greenough 2nd and their two young sons are returning to their Brookline home on the 10th of September, after a Summer spent at Pocasset on the Cape.

When the Newport horse show opened at the Casino the other day many were the eyes forced upon Mrs. Reggie Vanderbilt, for it was that very youthful matron's first appearance in a Casino box.

A very radiant figure was the former Gloria Morgan, wearing an accordion pleated gown of white canton and a large white hat with a crown and long streamer of lace, while a fingerine marvella cape with kolinsky collar completed the costume. Husband Reggie was, of course, one of the most active managers of the show, and that evening he and his pretty bride gave a dinner at Sandy Point Farm for the show's officials and exhibitors. The following evening they were hosts at another dinner, followed by a large dance at the Country Club.

Others with a Boston following seen at the fashionable equine classic were Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward—the latter a sister of Mrs. Lothrop Ames of Boston—Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, Miss Martha C. Codman and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown. The latter, just back from a trip around the world with her son, wore black foulard, brilliantly dotted, and a sable scarf. The small blue hat was banked with American Beauty roses. Mrs. Rice's gown and cape were of white, the latter boasting a kolinsky collar, her hat a small affair of black and white straw.

ALHAMBRA BAND SERENADES MAYOR

Thirty members of the Alhambra Band of Alhambra Council, K. of C., serenaded Mayor Curley at City Hall previous to their departure for Plymouth by boat. The band was headed by James Bullman, and the tune "Tammany" was much in evidence.

HERE'S A VAMP WHO HAS A MIND

MOVIE VAMPIRES are always beautiful—that's part of the job. But here is one that is also intellectual, introducing Madeline Hurlock who is playing with Ben Turpin in the new Mack Sennett comedy-satire, "Pitfalls of a Big City." Miss Hurlock was selected by Mr. Sennett because he believed in the young woman's mentality, established by the fact that her principal recreation is found in deep reading and constant study. And she is very good to look upon, too.

Madeline Hurlock

THE RICHEST "extra" woman in screenland—that is the distinction that falls upon the pretty shoulders of Mary Louise Hartje Woods, who has been taken into the First National family. Miss Woods will submerge her personality in an "extra" part in "Penrod," a picturization of Booth Tarkington's famous story of "Penrod" Schofield, a typical American boy. Mrs. Woods will play the part of Penrod's mother.

Mary Woods

Mrs. Woods' husband is a Pittsburgh millionaire, and granddaughter of John Hartje, a former president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

ALICE TERRY, who is universally acclaimed as one of the most beautiful women on the screen, has arrived at a point in her career when her talents as an actress are in demand. She is now engaged in the filming of "Scaramouche" for Rex Ingram, in which she will divide honors with Ramon Novarro. The story is a tale of the French Revolution and will be presented as a special feature film.

27 ARMY PILOTS TO ATTEND OPENING

Porter Adams, chairman of the Boston Air Board, notified Mayor Curley that twenty-seven army pilots and twenty members of the flying corps would be in Boston to attend the opening of the Boston Air Port, at Jefferies Field, East Boston, on Saturday, September 8. The mayor will tender a dinner at the Parker House previous to the exercises.

The Giants have a comfortable margin over the Reds. If past performances are worth the paper they are written on, the Polo Grounders will be the champions of the baseball world before the end of the week. The schedules to-day and to-morrow are soft ones for the McGraw crew and the Reds will have to step some to keep pace with the Giants. NEW ENGLAND TELEPHONE.

To G. D. Y., Hillside street—New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. in half year to June 30 earned $4.95 a share on the $6,476,700 stock out of total capital of $7,000,000. This compares with dividend requirements of $4 a share. Of the six months net for dividends totaling $2,243,726, the first quarter's portion was $1,739,406 and that of the second quarter $1,329,324.

The reduction reflects seasonal excess of operating expenses and to any considerable extent to the operators strike which was begun on June 28, or only for the days up to the end of the half's period. The statement for three months to September 30 will absorb the excess due to this. The company was put in maintaining service and protecting its loyal workers.

While the effect of strike expense will doubtless run into large figures, the comparative firmness of New England Telephone stock testifies to the absence of the slightest apprehension regarding the safety of the dividend. An unappropriated surplus $2,000,000 and a reserve for unrealized depreciation of nearly $5,000,000 constitute a strong backing for the stock.

Total net income for the six months ended August 30 equaled $4,738,000, or $4.23 a share, compared with $4,738,000 or $4.23 a share in the corresponding period last year. Other mills of the Bluestone system all showed increased net earnings.

FRAUDS AND MYLES

To M. C. B., Glenwood road—"The postoffice inspectors have looked us over," said the promoter of a radio apparatus manufacturing company to a prospect a few months ago. "Do you think we could send out all literature we put into the mails if we were not on the square?" he asked. Two months later the firm was in bankruptcy, the promoter had fled, and investors in the concern had lost a quarter of a million dollars. The postoffice authorities were unable to stop the scheme. The clean up campaign on the swindler got away with his loot before full proof of fraud could be established by inspectors so Federal action could not be taken. The Postoffice Department is a tower of strength in punishing fraudulent use of the mails, but there's so much to be done.

That his proposition or he himself was worthy of government permission to do business, to which he refers as "approval," is an impression which the shady stock broker tries to create. Such "approval" in States which have so called blue sky laws licensing stock brokers, takes the form of permission from the State to sell securities to the public. While this permission is not intended to help discourage many unscrupulous salesman may get it by a conservative showing of his proposition to the State department in charge of the matter, and, when he gets the coveted mark of honesty he goes out and trades on it —indulges in misrepresentation, makes a quick clean-up and clears out of the State before the authorities discover his duplicity.

For safety's sake, when a stock salesman tries to create the impression in your mind that he or his security has passed some sort of "honesty test" by Federal State or City government, look out for him! No government approves security except its own, nor has any individual authorized to use the name of the government department to sell stocks or bonds of private corporations.

PULLMAN CO

To E. R. Y., Nantasket avenue.—Earnings of Pullman Co. are substantially greater than a year ago and fiscal year ending July 31, finds annual dividend of 8 per cent. on the $15,000,000 capital stock, more than earned. In the preceding year net income from operations of $4,271,767 was shown which fell short of meeting dividend requirements by $4,228,075. But after settling the claim against United States Railroad Administration for depreciation and other losses during the period of Federal control for $7,396,967 surplus was increased $1,471,294. This brought profit and loss surplus shown on balance sheet of July 31, 1922, up to $21,370,570.

Earnings so far in much greater volume at present than it has been in several years. This has made it necessary to devote special effort towards maintenance, especially since the shop strike last year left the equipment in poor repair.

Income from manufacturing cars has greatly increased in past three months. Previous to that time, many contracts had been accepted at a very small margin of profit. Present business, which insures capacity operation for the remainder of the year, is all booked at a good profit. Of course, it must be realized that a comparatively small proportion of the earnings are derived from this source.

The company has no bank loans outstanding and over $40,000,000 in government bonds and securities of indebtedness. Last balance sheet showed $16,199,862 in accounts payable and accrued dividends of $2,889,960 as the only current liabilities against which were $21,554,888 and cash and government securities $3,489,847, equipment trust notes, $5,066,427 in other securities and $5,023,561 in bills and accounts receivable.

HOTEL AND RESORT CHAT

POPULAR SHORE GARDENS AT NANTASKET BEACH.

Few motor inns ever sprang to the immediate popularity of Frank McPeake's Shore Gardens, which overlooks Nantasket Beach. This is becoming rapidly recognized as one of New England's smartest resorts, and every night finds a goodly gathering dancing to the music of Morey Pearl's unapproached orchestra, and enjoying the exceptionally fine cuisine.

The fifteen acres of spacious and attractive grounds surrounding the inn make it a favorite for private banquets and outings.

"BEAUTIFUL HIGH PLACE" ON WINNEPESAUKEE.

This is the translation of the Indian name "Winnecoette" given to a delightful small summer hotel at Weirs, N. H., on the shore of Lake Winnepesaukee.

This house is on the main road leading to the White Mountains, halfway between Boston and Bretton Woods and is an equal favorite with tourists and vacationists. A large growth of fragrant pines surrounds the house and there are croquet grounds and tennis courts. Within ten minutes walk are churches, postoffice, steamship landings, railroad station, dancing pavilion and movie theatres. Beautiful motor roads stretch in every direction and there is an automobile connected with the hotel.

Winnecoette is operated by Mr George M. Bridges and it is his aim to maintain a home atmosphere and to provide good wholesome food, well-cooked and nicely served at reasonable rates.

CONVENIENT SHIRLEY HILL, GOFFSTOWN.

The Shirley Hill House at Goffstown, N. H., will solve the problem for many who are wondering where to go for the holiday week-end. This is the largest resort hotel in Southern New Hampshire, and is situated on a ridge of land 800 feet above the sea. The view to the north extends to the White Mountains, and to the south to the sea coast. Bowling, pool, tennis, croquet, dancing, and excellent golf are some of the amusements afforded, and in addition the Manchester Country Club is a few miles, extends its privileges to guests of the house. Rates are $20 to $30 a week. The Monadnock route is via the Daniel Webster Highway to West Manchester, then east to Shirley Hill Road.

BEAUTIFUL BRANT ROCK; SUPERB LOCATION.

Built so close to the water that at high tide the surf sprays the piazza steps, the Brant Rock House at Brant Rock, Mass., offers the combination of a superb location, comfortable rooms, excellent table and reasonable rates. A wide horseshoe of hard white sand facing the open sea makes Brant Rock one of the most beautiful beaches on the South Shore, and there is real tonic in the sea washed air. The fact that the Brant Rock House is little more than an hour's ride from Boston by motor or train adds to its popularity.

NEWS FROM BALSAMS; AT DIXVILLE NOTCH.

The eve of Labor Day finds many Boston and New England folks under the hospitable roof of the Balsams at Dixville Notch, N. H. The golf colony has been greatly increased the past week, as many who came on to watch the playing-off of the annual golf tournament have lingered to improve their own scores over this extremely sporty mountain course. The four flights in the tournament were won by Mrs. Geoffrey Gilmour, of Allentown, Pa., Mrs. Glover of Springfield, Mass., and Samuel Simons of New York city.

Among the New Englanders who will spend Labor Day at the Balsams are Mrs. Frederick T Bradbury, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cheeks, 3rd, Mrs. Wm. H. Hoffman, of Providence, R. I.; Mrs. Franklin Hobbs and Miss Rebekah Hobbs of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Russell Sharp of Taunton.

PAINTER AT PULPIT PLACE, COLEBROOK.

This popular motor Inn at Colebrook, N. H., operated by Miss Amy Lyman Phillips, is becoming increasingly popular with guests of the large White Mountain hotels. Mr. E. B. Ryckman, of Toronto, and Mrs. Geoffrey Beatty moved over from the Wambek at Jefferson, for tea this week and a prominent luncheon party included Mr. and Mrs. W. Forbes Angus of Montreal with Mrs. G. P. Stearns and Miss Stearns from the Mt. Washington Hotel at Bretton Woods. Other guests for tea during

Gloucester's Heroes in Times of Peace

The celebration of the 300th anniversary of the founding of Gloucester is an interesting event. The dedication of a memorial to Gloucester fishermen who died at sea is especially fitting, in the midst of memorials to those who have died in battle.

Sometimes it seems that we honor too little the heroism that is exhibited in times of peace. Napoleon once said that few men were capable of displaying what he called "two-o'clock-in-the-morning courage," that is, the courage which is exhibited alone, without the stimulus from the presence of others and without the stimulus of music and din.

While the average man would charge, with the sound of martial strains and the cheering of his comrades, to the very muzzle of a cannon, few men, all alone, would exhibit the same courage.

Whittier, our much-loved New England poet, who lived and died near Gloucester, put it well.

Dream not that helm and harness
Are the only tests of valor true,
For peace hath higher tests of manhood
Than battle ever knew.

Men who face the Angel of Death on board our fishing ships exhibit the "two-o'clock-in-the-morning courage" which is so rare. We ought to encourage bravery and sacrifice in times of peace, for it is in peace and not in war that progress is made.

Don't Scare Others—Don't Scare Yourself

Lewis L. Clarke's Parable

Often women, children and men sit in the evening telling each other ghost stories until they are afraid to go to bed, or unable to sleep after they do go.

Many business men and others in this country are doing the same thing, telling themselves ghost stories about troubles to come, frightening themselves, frightening others, and injuring business, which for its own health needs only to be WELL LOOKED AFTER with confidence and courage.

By way of discouraging this ghost story habit, Lewis L Clarke, president of the American Exchange National Bank in New York, sends to his depositors the following parable of:

THE PROSPERITY TRAIN

"The P. S. A. Prosperity Train" was moving a nice satisfactorily. "Front" were working at full spending.

Business was good.

Down the aisle came Ben Jones, manufacturer, and he dropped in the seat to visit Dick Harlow, another

"How's business, Dick?" said Ben.

"It's O. K., Ben, but I think we are moving too fast."

"What's that, Bob?"

"I don't know, but Dick just have a feeling that something going to happen."

Ben left him and dropped in another seat to chat Harry Hicks, porter, and

"Hello, Harry! You know old man Harlow is crazy old top. Just counting his chickens before they is good, but he is afraid something is going to happen—"

"What?" asks Harry.

"He don't know," answered Ben, "just nervous."

"And so the story spread from one to another through the train.

"It became the one topic of conversation.

"And it all started because old man Dick Harley got nervous and didn't know why."

Soon the crowd agreed to pull the bell cord stop the Prosperity Special, and go down the track to discover danger.

Then ago I that they might be gone two, two months or two years, and didn't know.

After an investigation they finally decided that nothing was fundamentally wrong.

That the same old elements of prosperity—the four seasons, sunshine and natural resources—existed as they were when the train

I don't know how long we can be quite sure.

They simply said enough prosperity temporarily out of our

"Then when they found that nothing was really wrong they agreed to climb back on the train and start her going again.

"That is the way business is created.

"It is godly and it is expensive.

"The cure? Just be careful what you say before you know what you are talking about.

"A vagrant idea is dangerous powder.

"A lightning bug's glow is a prairie fire compared to most men's knowledge of economics.

"But we are learning the wisdom of silence and work.

"There's nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so."

That has been quoted a million times, discussed, approved and denied as often. There are things NATURALLY good, apart from thinking, such as a peach or a healthy young baby. There are things NATURALLY bad, apart from thinking, such as a cheat, disease, earthquake, fire.

But this is certain: there is nothing so bad that everlasting discussion CAN'T MAKE IT WORSE.

To tell a man you are worrying about his recovery is to help along his death.

So say, "How well you are looking, how much better," gives strength to the brain, energy to the heart.

To say, "How badly you look," is to depress the brain, send a shock to the heart, lowering circulation and vitality. As with health, so with business. Think well of it, be cheerful about it, look on the best side, and especially don't go around scattering gloom. Business thrives when the mind is free. A mind worried is never free.

When Religion Falls Off

Question the Teachers

A clergyman deplores "the decline of a stalwart Christian faith among college and university professors." Investigation proved that 85 per cent. of freshmen in the universities are still Christians, but only a small percentage of juniors and a still smaller percentage of graduates retain their Christian faith.

That's very serious for earnest believers. But be careful not to blame the colleges, the professors or the students exclusively. Looking into the past, you see the various religions that have followed each other gradually losing their power. The trouble was not with the population, but with religion itself, or with those that taught it.

Man is naturally a religious being. But he must have a religion to suit him, one that fits him and his age. An ignorant class means inefficient teachers.

What does an irreligious age mean? Does it mean need of a new religion, or of the old religion better taught?

GREECE JUMPS FROM THE FRYING PAN INTO THE FIRE

By Herbert Kaufman

OFF again, on again! Greece no sooner concludes peace with Turkey than misguided patriots massacre a party of Italian commissioners umpiring disputed Albanian frontier lines.

Bad business. The first shot in the great World War was fired from an assassin's pistol. There's no love lost between Rome and Athens, and this situation may also be utilized as a pretext to wipe ancient scores from the slate.

Eastern Europe, sulking in its tent over nationalized territories, would welcome another Balkan flare-up.

Jugo-Slavia is sitting on a powder keg; Bulgaria but bides her hour to snatch back lost possessions; Hungary has several pigs to roast, and rag-tag Macedonia chronically seizes every chance to join a general shindig.

If there's trouble, Constantinople won't be the last to mix in, nor is Russia likely to hold hands off coveted Bessarabia.

So long as nations are liable for their subjects' acts, civilization will thus teeter on the chasms of cataclysm.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON WATER IN A FUNNEL

By Garret P. Serviss.

"I am a school girl, sixteen years old. I know something about gravity and adhesion, but cannot understand why when water is poured into a funnel it runs down in a spiral. Will you please explain?—THISBE A. ELION, Galva, Ill."

BECAUSE the opening at the bottom is so much smaller than the gradually narrowing body of the funnel above, the water crowds toward the centre. At the same time, because the small outlet where the water escapes is directly below the centre, a depression is produced vertically above the outlet.

The water sinks there faster than elsewhere because it is nearer to the point of escape. The central part of the water also descends more rapidly for the same reason that the flow in the middle of a river is swifter than along the banks. There is a slight adhesion of the water to the sides of the funnel, or a friction tending to hold it back.

The conditions inside the funnel recall those said to produce the legendary "Maelstrom" in a deep fjord on the coast of Norway. The water, pushing in from all sides at once toward the centre, begins to whirl round and round because the narrowing of the funnel toward the bottom, and the consequent increased pressure, prevent it from approaching the axis of the opening along radial lines.

Any accidental obstruction, or special friction, or direction imparted to the water when it is poured into the funnel, may determine the way in which the whirl turns.

This little sketch may aid you to form an idea of how the water in the funnel, or the air in the tornado, departs more and more from a radial to a tangential motion as the central axis of spin is approached. Of course you know that "radial" means a straight line from any point on the circumference of a circle to the centre, while "tangential" means a line that runs at right angles to the direction of the centre, or to the radius.

We see how the water, starting from the outer parts of the funnel and being drawn by gravity both downward toward the opening and inward toward the centre, begins to move in radial lines. But owing to the crowding a t the friction it gets turned around the central depression into which it is trying to force its way.

A Funnel or a Tornado

A direction of revolution, or whirl, being once established, the whole crowd of water particles takes up a common motion. The greater the pressure the swifter the whirling becomes, until at last the particles close to the central axis are driven round so swiftly that, like a ball swung at the end of a string, they can no longer approach the centre, and there a tubular opening, more or less completely empty, forms.

Meanwhile, the water at the bottom is escaping as fast as it can from the outlet, at the same time retaining the spinning motion that it acquired in its vertiginous descent through the congested funnel.

ENGLAND'S "GRAVE" PROBLEM

CRANHAM, Essex, Eng., Aug. 31. The University of Georgia has caused a terrible commotion in this quiet old world town.

Application has been made by the American university for the right to search for the remains of General James Edward Oglethorpe, the founder of Georgia and its university.

Recent grave digging expeditions have aroused considerable ire in England, and there is a question whether the application will be granted.

THE VOICE OF NEW ENGLAND

No Attention Paid to Anonymous Communications

Soft Coal Again.

Editor, Boston American:

The ordinary reader is just a bit bewildered at what the newspapers have to say about the coal question. Is it a kind of psychology they are practising? In glaring headlines we are assured daily that the President will see to it that there will be no shortage of coal during the coming winter, that there will be no suffering like that of last winter.

On reading more closely we find that it means no shortage of bituminous coal, which was forced upon us last year, and which was the cause of great suffering to many householders.

The efforts of the Coal Commission and the Governors of New England seem to be directed to what they call educating the public to the use of soft coal. By the public they mean, doubtless, everybody but themselves and those others who are well-to-do.

They tell us to boycott anthracite and beat both operators and miners. Are the men who are offering us this advice going to boycott anthracite, or are their cellars already plentifully supplied with it as were those of Mr. Storrow and Mr. Phelan last year when they were offering the same advice?

Still Needs Help

Editor Helping Hand:

I am writing to ask you if you will help me. I have written before to the Helping Hand column and I certainly thank you very much for the addresses you have sent me and I also thank those kind readers. I got something for my little girl, which greatly pleased me. I haven't got anything for my little boys yet. Their ages are eight and six. They are very much in need of clothing such as shoes, underwear and overcoats to keep them warm this Winter. They wear 10 and 9 shoes. I wish some kind reader could help me with my little ones as my husband is in a sanatorium for his health and we don't know whether he is ever coming home alive to us. I am very much in need of clothing to keep me warm. I wear 38 or 40 suit or dress. If anybody has any rugs or carpets I could use them. I thank you

MRS. B. J. R.

Her Tots in Rags

Editor Helping Hand:

I wonder if anybody has children's clothes to give away, such as dresses, and pants for boys. I have four children ranging from eleven years down to four. I have had help from you—clothes for myself—and such a help it has made. I hate to ask for these things, but it takes every cent for food, and clothing we can't buy. I would gladly pay a little for same. I would appreciate anything in the line of children clothes, such as dresses, blouses and sweaters which they need very badly. Really they are all rags, what they have.

I hope some day I will be able to help. You are doing wonderful work. The things I've had for myself were lovely. The ladies that sent me things were very nice indeed. If I only had no children, so they haven't been able to help my little ones.

I received the help from Mrs. O'B and am very grateful for them. Thank you very much.

Wants Crib on Wheels

Editor Helping Hand:

As I am in poor circumstances and am expecting a baby within a week, would someone kindly give me a little crib on wheels that can be wheeled from room to room or out on the porch. I should be most grateful as I have nothing to put the baby in and have a great struggle to get necessities.

Has Man's Raincoat

Editor Helping Hand.

I have sent Mrs. E. B. a box of bedding and a few other things. I will now send them each a pair of shoes, but cannot supply them with all the clothes they need, so I hope some other kind reader will help her out on children's clothes. I have a man's raincoat, size 38, that I would be glad to give to someone. Your work is wonderful. Wish I could help more.

MRS. H. F.

Thank you. Mrs. E. B. probably will get other help. The raincoat offer still be held for replies.

Thank You M. M. K.

Editor Helping Hand.

I have some children's clothes, which I will be glad to give to someone, including two rompers, three dresses, five pairs of stockings, sizes 5 and 6, a pair of rubbers, size 7; a white washable hat. The clothes will fit a child about three years old. I also have two old skirts, one white, one black, and a belt, size 28. All the clothes are in perfect condition, and I will be glad to give them to some needy mother.

M. M. K.

Many thanks. You have been sent the address of Mrs. M. T., who has a daughter two and a half years old. Her husband is out of work, and she will greatly appreciate your kindness.

"A bride!" the traveler exclaims. "Then why the row?"

It does not take his guide long to tell him the reason for the disturbance. For this African belle is only acting in the way befitting a bride of her tribe.

Her husband's friends have all this request come to take her to her new home. But to act in accordance with the way custom dictates a well-bred Lango girl should act, she must show great displeasure and put up a real fight before she is finally captured and carried bodily to the home of her bridegroom.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

BRIDE FIGHTS FOR HER HOME

By Temple Manning

IF a young man is our country is fortunate enough to have a home already prepared for his future wife, there are many days of happiness for the two as they walk around the rooms, plan for the arrangement of furniture and discuss the requirements for the home in which they expect to spend their lives together.

And then when the honeymoon is over it is with the greatest joy that the young bride first steps into the home her husband has provided for her and over which she is to preside.

She goes to it eagerly and with the greatest love and happiness in her heart. This is a day that will stand out as one of the red letter days of her whole life.

For this reason it comes as a surprise to the traveler in Africa—should he reach the Lango border of the Nile—to see a great commotion outside one of the native huts and to discover the cause.

Around the hut surges a crowd of young people. At the door stands a young African girl. She is hurling epithets at her friends. Her hands are clenched. She is in a fury.

Suddenly she crowd closes in on the girl. They seize her as she kicks and bites and scratches her assailants who are close and dear friends with whom she has been brought up.

"What's the cause of the battle?" inquires the traveler. At first he believes the girl is being abused. But on inquiring, he is informed that she is a bride.

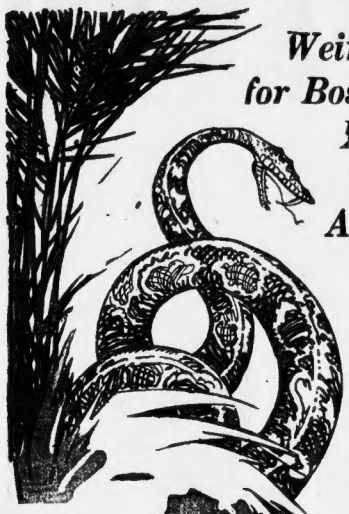
Making Jungle Goddesses of American Society Girls

Weird Tribal Honors for Boston's Intrepid Beauties, Who Slew a Giant African Python and Saved Seven Lives



Mrs. Charles P. Curtis, Jr., Lovely Young Boston Matron, Whose Sure Aim Helped to Kill an 11-Foot Python in British East Africa.

"Just as the python raised his head, with fangs protruded, to strike at the cowering native women and children, the sharp 'Ping' of American bullets halted him, helplessly wounded."

Mrs. Richard C. Curtis, Massachusetts Society Woman, Crowned a "Jungle Goddess."

NIGHT. Silence. Solitude. The pulsing stars of a Spring sky spread over East Africa. Then, in the first flush of dawn, the ominous swish of a gigantic reptile's moving body; screams of native women and children; a tom-tom's warning throb, and the repeated spurt of flame from two rifles, as a pair of Boston society beauties slew a deadly python, winning for themselves the gratitude of the Kigoman tribe, which crowned them "jungle goddesses!"

This, briefly, is the story which, emanating from the dark heart of the African wilds, has startled fashionable American friends of the two women, Mrs. Charles P. Curtis, Jr., and Mrs. Richard C. Curtis, both prominent in the social life of the Massachusetts city.

Two delicate women, they faced a task that might have tested the courage of a Stanley. But they succeeded in killing a great python which had defied stalwart Kigoman hunters, riddling with thirty bullets the tough hide of the snake, as it advanced to attack two native women and five children.

The young matrons were content with the unofficial honor of having saved seven lives, but the tribesmen and their wives would not let matters rest there. Instead, they insisted on showering their lovely protectors with gold and silver, with native ornaments and "magic" amulets, with embraces and kisses and cries of delight.

They even offered the intrepid Americans swarthy slaves and, as an "extra added attraction," two athletic and polite African husbands, though each Mrs. Curtis has a perfectly live spouse of her own.

And finally, as an unique tribute, the Kigomans initiated their pretty guests into a mystic order, hitherto jealously kept secret from the prying eyes of all foreigners — the "jungle goddesses" — the rites of which no white woman had ever witnessed.

The daring rescue of the Kigoman women and children by the Boston belles leaked out, as all such dramatic exploits invariably do. One of the results was that Sir Horace Archer Byatt, Governor General of Tanganyika Territory, sent in a special report of the episode to the Colonial Secretary in London, highly commending their bravery in the face of what seemed pronounced death.

The two heroines were members of a hunting party made up of Charles P. Curtis, Sr., of No. 344 Beacon street, Boston, himself a noted big game bagger; his wife, and their sons, the husbands of the younger women. All six had been stalking quarry in East Africa since last April. According to the latest cabled advices, they will remain abroad until the Winter.

About the middle of May, the Curtises were in the midst of the Kigoma jungles.

They had found the average Kigoman an admirably agreeable and responsive person, and while camping thereabouts had its disadvantages, among them the absence of shower baths and the morning cantaloup, they were used to that, and didn't mind.

One brilliant morning, a competitive hunt was proposed, and rifles were oiled and packs rolled with the gay enthusiasm of rookies, Mrs. Charles P. Curtis, Jr. (formerly Miss Edith Roelker,) and Mrs. Richard C. Curtis (before her marriage Anita Grosvenor), were the merriest members of the little crowd. They volunteered to go in advance of the others and "spot" any possible prizes in the form of game. Here chance took a hand in the plot, with the result that the two women became separated from their companions.

Meanwhile, the latter tried to strike the lost trail—but with no success. Night came on, and the question of shelter became an imperative one.

Then, just as their courage was ebbing, "Hurrah!" shouted Mrs Richard Curtis, "here's a path! It may lead us to a village." She was right. Late that night footsore and spent, the adventurers came upon a collection of Kigoman huts.

A rude "compound," set aside for pigs and dogs, was their resting place. They were fortunately not too weary to heed the pantomimic warning of the village "mayor" that there were many venomous reptiles in the neighborhood.

On that slender thread of circumstance, perhaps, hung the safety of both their lives.

Mrs. Curtis No. 1 and Mrs. Curtis No. 2 decided to divide the night into watches, one sleeping for three hours at a stretch while the other, with rifle cocked and eye alert, stood guard. Just as dawn was streaking the East, a blood-chilling scream from the village brought them to their feet.

Grasping their firearms, the Americans rushed from the "compound" and toward a grassy knoll, along which a monstrous python was wedging its way toward some native women and children nearby. Having already consumed a sow and her young, the great snake—11 feet long—had scented human blood.

In unison, the American women raised their rifles. One shot, two, three rang out as the bullets grazed the big, writhing reptile, still wriggling toward its intended prey. Then Mrs. Edith Curtis advanced nearer, with Mrs. Anita Curtis close behind. They crouched at the foot of the hillock, waiting for the reared head, with spread jaws, to be thrust forward. Behind them stood the trembling Kigoman women.

They did not have to wait long. An angry hiss, the gleam of greenish eyes in the dim light, told them where to aim. So, just as the python raised his head, with fangs protruded, to strike at the cowering native women and children, the sharp "ping!" of American bullets—thirty in all—halted him helplessly wounded, and saved the Kigomans from being crushed to death.

Feasting, rejoicing, prayers, with every primitive symbol of thanksgiving which the tribe knew, followed. It all wound up with the crowning of the foreign heroines as "jungle goddesses."

But Mrs. Edith and Mrs. Anita, though polite in their reception of these little attentions, were much more delighted when native guides offered to locate their lost companions.

And, sure enough, on the bank of a small stream, but a few miles away, the ladies found the rest of their alarmed and amazed party encamped. Joy was general, but that of the feminine python-killers knew no bounds. For, as Mrs. Curtis No. 1 remarked, "Even a jungle goddess is glad to get back to her husband, after an hour's battle with a snake twice her length!"

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

EVERY day you hear some guy going around bragging that he's a self-made man, but you hate to tell him that he should have let the contract out to somebody else.

HE'll tell you it was no sin for his career as a kid. That's nothing wonderful. Nobody ever heard of a man being born when he was twenty-one years old.

SOME fellows make it a habit of boasting to everybody what a success they are. The only time they've a failure is when they're talking to the tax collector.

A LOT of men imagine they're at the top of their profession when in reality they aren't even out of the basement.

ONE guy claimed he was a self-made man, but judging by his looks he must have been on strike most of the time.

HE built himself a home on Fifth Park so that he could tell everybody he was way up in the world.

IT'S all right for a man to reconstruct himself, but the trouble is he generally turns out to be top heavy.

JUST because you happen to make a few thousand dollars is no reason you're a success. No man ever came into this world with a bank book in his hand.

EVERYBODY has to work their way up. A baby can't go direct from the hospital to the job as president of a railroad.

NO man is really self-made. His parents have to help him until he's three or four years old.

ALWAYS APPRECIATE YOUR PARENTS.

You look at the parents of others and wish that your parents were like this one or that.

A little more modern in dress, more lively in spirit, perhaps. The parents of your friends seem to take more pride in those outside, than your own parents do—they are more popular.

For these numerical reasons you wish you were the son or the daughter of certain old folks whom you admire.

When you stop and consider the injustice of such thoughts, are you not ashamed of yourself?

Won't you not prefer to have parents who are sweet and pure minds, parents who love you dearly though they do dress plain, rather than be the child of parents who think more of dress and what someone is going to say about them than they do of placing your interests before their own?

Learn to appreciate worth above material things.

Money cannot buy a kind and loving parent.

Father—"There you go again. Remember what I have just said."

A long pause, then—"Father, I have thought twice and I am now thoroughly convinced that your coat-tails are on fire and nearly burned off."

Billy went home from school bearing every evidence of having had the worst of a fight.

"Well," said Billy, "I thought he was a good little boy till I hit him."
